

Live Test of AMBER Alert System - January 5, 2022 1020 hrs.

The Alaska State Troopers and the Alaska Broadcasters Association will be conducting a live test of the Alaska Amber Alert System on Wednesday, January 5th at approximately 10:20 AM.

The test will be canceled in the event of an actual child abduction AMBER Alert.

The AMBER Alert test will be broadcast on radio television through the Emergency Alert System (EAS). Audio on TV and radio will indicate it's a "test", but what viewers see on their television screens may not.

The AMBER Alert test will only be sent to cellphones capable and configured to receive test alerts through the Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) system. In a real alert, an actual AMBER Alert WEA code would be used.

The AMBER Alert test will be sent statewide.

The AMBER Alert test will use the State of Alaska 511 system at:
<https://511.alaska.gov/> and may be displayed on some highway road signs as a test alert.

The AMBER Alert test will be displayed on the State's AMBER Alert web page at:
<http://amberalert.alaska.gov/>

The AMBER Alert test will be displayed on the State's AMBER Alert Twitter page at:
<https://twitter.com/akamberalerts>

The AMBER Alert test will be displayed on the State's Facebook AMBER Alert web page at:
<https://www.facebook.com/AKAmberAlert>

On the day of the test, there will be a survey available to provide test results.

For additional information on Alaska's AMBER Alert system, please see:
<http://amberalert.alaska.gov/>